You won't want to miss this opening session by Karen Quinn who enjoyed a life of adventure with her husband and children, sailing, diving, and traveling. The adventure changed when an engine failure forced her husband, a helicopter pilot for a Denver television station, to land in the icy waters of a Colorado reservoir. His month long coma resulted in severe head injury and subsequent disability.

Karen became her husband's caretaker and advocate until his death. Powerful lessons gleaned from years of working with the medical community and as a home health care consumer have helped her create a unique, and dynamic presentation about effectively dealing with the challenges of life.

This compelling presentation will heighten understanding and change opinions about the human capacity to deal with crisis.
