Gene Tischer is a home care veteran with more than 30 years of experience. He is an attorney, a former agency administrator and, for more than a decade, the executive director of Associated Home Health Industries of Florida, one of the nation's largest state home care associations. Gene is a highly sought after speaker who is known for his industry insights as well as his candor. This seminar has been described "vintage Tischer," providing viewers a unique opportunity to hear Gene's uncensored thoughts on staffing shortages, nurse delegation, performance-based reimbursement, burdensome regulations and a variety of other challenges our industry faces.

This seminar was produced for the Council of State Home Care Associations, of which HCAC is a member, and is being provided to home care agencies across the country at no cost. It is being broadcast over the Internet exclusively by the Home Care Information Network, letting you experience first-hand HCIN's groundbreaking on-line education service. Unlike a scheduled telephone conference, you can view this seminar at your convenience, anytime and from any location where you have Internet access. HCIN founder Tom Williams participated in a technology session at HCAC's annual convention in May.

HCIN was launched this spring by Stony Hill Management in cooperation with HCAC and other state home care associations. Stony Hill is home care's leading technology consulting company and publisher of Home Care Automation Report. Thousands of home care executives and staff have already participated in an HCIN seminar and are giving this new service rave reviews. Find out for yourself!
