Elizabeth Hogue consistently brings the home care community timely and important topics. Her radar screen seems to always pick up just what is hot for our members.

You and your staff won't want to miss our August 17th audio-conference on "Legal Issues for Pay for Performance: Dealing with Patients Who Are Inappropriate for Home Care and/or Non-Compliant."

Please note that due to Elizabeth's travel schedule, the time has been bumped up by one hour -- Mountain Time: 10 to 11:30 a.m.

An Overview: In the relatively near future, home health agencies are likely to be paid, at least in part, based upon the quality of care rendered. The factors to be considered have been identified and the likely structure has been identified. It is clear that agencies cannot succeed under Pay for Performance (P4P) if they admit patients who are not appropriate for home care services or if they are unable to assist patients and primary caregivers to achieve compliance with their plans of care.

The purpose of this audio-conference is to assist agencies to achieve success under P4P. Your staff will learn the nine likely P4P indicators and how they relate to barriers to success as well as practical strategies for achieving success under P4P. This session's discussion will be in the important context of dealing with patients who are inappropriate for home care and/or non-compliant.
